

Leadership Collapse Spiral™

The Leadership Collapse Spiral™ illustrates how leadership breakdown rarely occurs suddenly. Instead, instability often emerges through gradual misalignment—beginning with internal drift, progressing through relational fracture, and eventually producing cultural erosion within the organization.

This pattern reflects a timeless leadership reality: when leaders lose alignment with responsibility, purpose, and disciplined relationships, instability begins to circulate through the systems they influence.

Scripture echoes this principle in its warning: “Where no counsel is, the people fall.” (Proverbs 11:14)

Recognizing the early stages of leadership drift allows leaders to restore alignment before instability spreads throughout the culture they are called to steward.
