

Request an Advisory Consultation

Begin the Leadership Conversation

Leadership often brings moments that require thoughtful reflection. Whether navigating complex decisions, strengthening leadership culture, or exploring new strategic directions, leaders frequently benefit from stepping back to examine their path with greater clarity.

An Advisory Consultation with the 7000 RPM Leadership Institute™ provides an opportunity to begin that conversation.

This consultation is designed as an initial dialogue where leaders and organizations can explore leadership questions, discuss their current environment, and consider how the principles of the 7000 RPM Leadership System™ may support their leadership development.

What an Advisory Consultation Is

An advisory consultation is not a formal presentation or program enrollment session. Instead, it is a thoughtful conversation intended to understand your leadership context and determine whether the Institute's work may be helpful.

During this conversation we may explore:

- leadership challenges or opportunities you are currently navigating
- organizational culture and leadership alignment
- leadership development within teams or institutions
- strategic decisions affecting the direction of your leadership environment
- ways the 7000 RPM Leadership System™ may provide useful perspective

The goal of this conversation is simply to determine whether a deeper engagement with the Institute would be beneficial.

Who Typically Requests an Advisory Consultation

Leaders who request advisory consultations often serve within environments where leadership decisions influence the direction of organizations, communities, and teams.

This may include:

- organizational and corporate leaders
- nonprofit and community leaders
- ministry and church leadership teams
- entrepreneurs and founders
- emerging leaders seeking clarity and leadership formation

While their environments may differ, they share a common desire to strengthen their leadership influence through thoughtful reflection and disciplined leadership practice.

What Happens After the Conversation

Following the consultation, the Institute may recommend several possible next steps depending on the needs of the leader or organization.

These may include:

- continued advisory engagement
- participation in a leadership cohort
- leadership formation intensives
- leadership presentations or workshops for organizations

Each engagement is approached thoughtfully and tailored to the leadership environment being served.
